

Call for Expressions of Interest

New Editor-in-Chief for the journal

Organization Studies

Organization Studies and EGOS are seeking expressions of interest for the role of Organization Studies co-Editor-in-Chief to join Paolo Quattrone, the existing team of senior editors, and the managing editor Sophia Tzagaraki in the lead of the journal. The term of office is four years, starting in September 2023. The post carries an honorarium; necessary travel expenses will be covered.

For all information on the journal, please visit: <https://journals.sagepub.com/home/oss>

The successful candidate will fulfill the following general criteria:

- A strong scholarly record that is in accordance with the spirit and mission statement of Organization Studies, as well as with EGOS more broadly (i.e., in particular: open to a diversity of paradigms and all sub-disciplines that contribute to organization studies and organization theory; devoted both to those who are organized and those who do the organizing; open to looking at organizations as both the products of society and as institutions which also shape society; to processes of organizing; and to environments in which organizations operate)
- Evidence of a strong connection to EGOS as a scholarly community
- Evidence of a strong connection to Organization Studies
- Evidence of significant editorial experience
- Evidence of support from their home institution, so that as Editor-in-Chief s/he can be allowed sufficient time to carry out the task

In addition, the successful candidate ...

- will demonstrate administrative skills and the capacity to handle a demanding workload and to meet hard deadlines;
- will be able to work constructively with authors, reviewers, and the entire editorial team, as well as with the EGOS leadership (Editors-in-Chief are ex-officio members of the EGOS Executive Board);
- must be prepared to contribute to the success of the journal through attendance at editorial meetings and representing the journal at events and to institutions

Finally, and importantly (as Organization Studies will focus even more on empirical studies in the future), the successful candidate should have openness to different methodologies and empirical designs.

One or several short-listed candidates will be asked to present their perspectives and ideas to the EGOS Executive Board during the 38th EGOS Colloquium in July 2022.

For an informal discussion on the nature of the editorial tasks and the support that EGOS gives to Editors-in-Chief in recognition of the time they devote to the journal, please be in touch directly with the EGOS Chair Bernard Forgues (forgues@em-lyon.com).

Please email your expressions of interest, including a cover letter, to Bernard Forgues (forgues@em-lyon.com) – stating why you would like to apply, as well as the skills and qualities you can bring to the post, along with a short CV that focuses on your publishing, reviewing, and editorial experience.

Closing date for expressions of interest is April 15, 2022.
